Robert Francis Withers Allston (1801-1864) was a graduate of West Point, class of 1822 and returned to South Carolina, where he devoted his energy to rice planting, a career that made him one of the wealthiest men in the state. When he died in 1864, his estate included over 13,000 acres of land and 590 slaves. Frequently elected to the South Carolina General Assembly, he also served as Governor, 1856-1858. He married in 1832 Adele Petigru, the sister of James L. Petigru.
